Our enterprise has invested approximately UAH 16 million for five recent years in training and reskilling. We have seen the effect of such investments a week ago, when our blast furnace operators, process engineers and logistics specialists prevented the enterprise from a shut down under extreme conditions of coke shortage. We created a future proof center training highly qualified specialists even in 10 years."

Vadim Boychenko, Mayor of Mariupol:

"I am proud that I stood at the origins of center, when I was the HR Director of the enterprise. Steelmakers training center combines classroom work with field training sites, where the employees can study new ways of work and learn to control new, the state-of-art equipment. It is a significant contribution to the establishment of highly qualified specialists cluster in our city. There should not be a gap between the theory and practice. Only the synergy of these components achieves the real improvement in performance."
